AGRICULTURAL TRACTOR SAFETY

Guidelines for safe tractor operation

Before starting the tractor

It is very important to be familiar with the tractor and know how to use it safely. This can be partly achieved by reviewing the safety precautions in the operator's manual regularly. Be sure to observe and follow the instructions contained on warning decals attached to your tractor. Before using the tractor, make sure it has been properly serviced and that all guarding is in place and working.

Do not wear loose clothing while operating a tractor – loose clothing can catch on moving parts and cause an accident. Before moving the tractor, make sure there is clear visibility from all sides and all lights are visible and working. If you are going to take the tractor onto the road, you must follow all traffic rules on open roads, including proper lighting, hand signals, right-of-way, etc. One of the most important things to remember is never allow any riders on the tractor – except the driver!

Training new operators

It is very important to train new and inexperienced operator by reviewing the operator's manual. Teach new operators to recognize hazards and know how to avoid them. Have the new tractor operator practice, without equipment attached, in a level field or a large, level yard. After the new operator has learned to operate the tractor alone in a level area, the next step is to attach and operate the equipment. The new operator should gradually work into the more complex jobs of tractor operation.

Tractors have contributed immensely to farm productivity and helped make it possible for farmers to feed not only themselves but also hundreds of others. Although today's tractors are safer than previous tractors, they are also larger and more technically advanced which creates new hazards. Tractors are involved in many farm incidents – accounting for approximately two-thirds of all fatalities. Over the years, manufacturers have added many safety features such as, roll over protection systems (ROPS), guards and master shields for the power take-off (PTO), traveling lights, enclosed and heated cabs, etc. However, all of these safety features do not replace a trained operator, aware of the potential hazards of operating a tractor safely.
